

ROWE SANCTUARY

Lillian Annette Rowe Bird Sanctuary, commonly known as Rowe Sanctuary, is dedicated to the conservation of Sandhill Cranes, Whooping Cranes and other migratory birds, and their habitat along the Platte River in south-central Nebraska.

The original purchase of 782 acres in 1974, which was funded by Lillian Annette Rowe of Trenton, NJ, included 2.5 miles of river channel, wet meadows, and some agricultural fields. Additional land acquisitions have increased the current size of the sanctuary to 2,418 acres.

HENRY DOORLY ZOO AND AQUARIUM

Consistently ranked one of the world's best zoos, Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoo and Aquarium is the ultimate interactive zoo experience. This 130-acre zoo is home to the world's largest indoor desert and the largest indoor rainforest in North America.

As a leader in conservation, the Zoo focuses on areas to benefit animal husbandry and species conservation. Focus areas include conservation genetics, conservation medicine, rare plant conservation, reproductive sciences and comparative nutrition. The Zoo is recognized nationally for its conservation, animal care and exhibit design.

Making its home in one of Omaha's most unique treasures, Union Station, the Durham Museum is the regions premier hands-on history museum.

It offers a fascinating look at the history of the region and offers a broad-range of traveling exhibits covering subjects ranging from history and culture, to science, industry and more through the affiliation with the Smithsonian Institution and strong ties with the Library of Congress, National Archives, and Field Museum.

BOYS TOWN

When you visit the Village of Boys Town, you'll get an unforgettable glimpse into the history of an organization that has given new hope to so many at-risk children over the past 100 years.

Father Edward J. Flanagan purchased the Overlook Farm in 1921 and it became the new, permanent site of Boys Town. Over the decades that followed, schools, churches, and homes were built, and tens of thousands of young lives have been transformed.

When it first opened in 1959, the Strategic Air Command and Aerospace Museum's mission was to commemorate the aircraft of the Strategic Air Command. Over the years, the museum became well-known by giving the public the opportunity to visit an impressive array of aircraft that helped SAC preserve the peace during the Cold War.

The SAC Museum utilizes over 300,000 square feet of exhibit, education, and event space to educate, inspire, and entertain its guests who come around the world.
